

Fry Undergraduate Award Application Packet

Undergraduate students who have declared a major in anthropology may apply to the Fry Undergraduate Award fund for financial support pursuing their anthropology related goals. The proposal must have the support of at least one member of the anthropology faculty.

Below is a list of activities for which seeking Fry funding would be appropriate. It is not a comprehensive list. If you would like to apply for support for another purpose, consult with a member of the anthropology faculty to determine if the Fry Award is appropriate and, if it is, which proposal instructions should be followed.

Due Dates: submit an electronic copy of your application to tapowell@smu.edu and khollenback@smu.edu

Visiting Potential PhD Programs

Students intending to apply for graduate programs in anthropology may apply for up to $2000 to visit universities to which they intend to apply. Follow the Travel Proposal Instructions when assembling your application and be sure to justify the programs you hope to visit, including identifying the potential advisor.

Research Proposal Instructions

In two pages (excluding the bibliography, but including illustrations) your proposal needs to explain:

- your research question

- the data you will gather to address your question

- whether you already possess the necessary skills to gather and analyze the data, and if you do not, how you will obtain those skills
